Take one tired, overworked, overextended parent and add another factor—a child's birthday party coming up — what to do? In the Atlanta area, call Kent Jackson, who runs Pint-Sized Parties. "Our motto is, we can make it work," says Jackson, who will transform your home into a celebration wonderland. She will do everything for the stressed party moms and dads, including providing crafts, games, decorations, cake and photography. She'll also work with parents who want to be hands-on. Jackson knows the importance of customizing a party to fit the child's personality. Her own daughter, 4-year-old Grayson, was not into the typical princess characters. "She's a tomboy. She's into fire trucks and pirates," says her mother. "She's a Johnny Depp fan," who starred in the Pirates of the Caribbean movies. Jackson created a party theme of pirates and pixies so that the girls and boys invited to the party would feel included. Among the festivities were customized goody bags with eye patches and bubble swords for the pirates, and fairy bears and pearls for the pixies.
